

A Note on Our Angler Diary Program

Haliburton Lake Trout Angler's Diary

Public input is crucial to the development of sound District fisheries programs. Volunteer angler diary information and catch records are vital to our continued understanding of the present fishery. With good information from anglers, fisheries managers can then make better decisions on future stocking programs and the need for lake specific, field assessment projects.

Anglers are encouraged to fill out the information below and complete for each fishing trip. Angler diaries are available from your local MNR office and an electronic version of this form is also available (upon request) for recording your trip information and submitting directly to the e-mail address listed below. At the end of the season anglers are encouraged to return this information to our local office. All personal information collected with these forms will be kept confidential.
